INDEPENDENT DAEMONS

The Realm of Chaos is home to all the former Champions that have become Daemon Princes as well as to the countless other entities of varying kinds. These creatures are known as Independent Daemons and they can act as Patrons to Champions just like the Great Powers of Chaos. There are no absolute rules which govern the appearance of creatures so powerful and unique.

To the ambitious modeller Independent Daemons represent the ultimate in personal imagination. For a player who has taken his Champion to the ultimate heights of Daemonhood what more fitting conclusion is there than modeling the final appearance of the Daemon Prince.

DAEMONS OF TZEENTCH

The Daemons of Tzeentch are the most exotically colourful of all Daemons. This is especially true of the Flamer and the Horrors because these creatures are partially made from raw Chaos and so glow with inner power.. These effects are brought out by rich shading and careful highlights as well as by the use of bright, solid colours

The Lords of Change vary in colour a great deal, but bright blues, shining yellows and glowing reds are most suitable and appropriate. Blue Horrors are a vivid blue: Pink Horrors a radiant pink. Flamers have pinkish lower parts shading into blue arms - the overall effect is a vibrant mauve colour. The Discs are creatures which naturally inhabit the Realm of Chaos, taking on a material form only when they move into the material universe. Their bodily form and colour varies a great deal from Disc to Disc, but most are brightly coloured reflecting the inner magic which animates them.

DAEMONS OF NURGLE

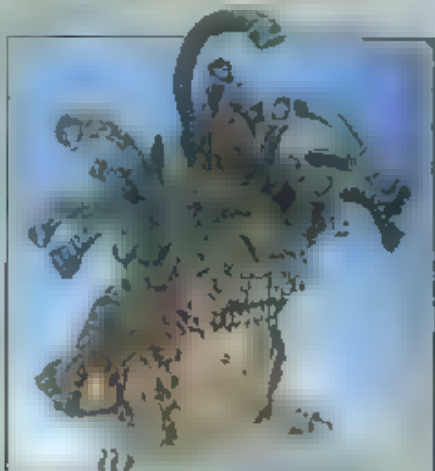

Like their master the Lord of Decay the Daemons of Nurgle manifest the most horrific diseases and malformities, discolouring their flesh and tainting their skin with the vivid hues of corruption.

The basic colour of most Nurgle Daemons is a putrid green, but this can be brightened up considerably by luridly discoloured entrails and shining hoofs. The Greater Daemons, Great Unclean Ones, are very proud of their diseased bodies and go to great pains to cultivate infections by scratching enthusiastically with their rancid talons.

Both the Nurgangs and the Plaguebearers are basically a putrid green colour, although this varies from a sickening yellowish green to a dark saddy stagnant green so there is plenty of scope for variation. The Beast is a slug-like creature with an affectionate and simple-minded nature - it is also deadly as its body exudes a poisonous slime. This makes the Beast look shiny and wet. Its body can be brownish, greenish or even black.

CHAOS CHAMPIONS

Champions of Chaos are the ultimate warriors of the Warhammer World. They have struck an unbreakable bargain with the gods of Chaos themselves, trading their lives in return for worldly power and the chance of immortality as a Daemon Prince of the Realm of Chaos. As Champions rise in the favour of their gods they acquire rewards of Chaos and gradually mutate into ever more powerful and increasingly inhuman forms. These rewards are the material signs of their success and of their Patron's generosity

Pete has impressive armies of all four Chaos Powers numbering well over a thousand models in total! Not only is Pete a very prolific painter but he is also a very good one as these models taken from his Tzcentch and Nurgle collections show. Particularly attractive are many special conversions which are accomplished with considerable skill and ingenuity. All involve lots of modelling work to produce what are to all intents new and unique models.

NURGLE

This page illustrates a selection of shield and banner designs typical of those used by Chaos Champions of Nurgle and their followers. A Champion usually chooses or invents a personal badge which is displayed on his shield and, in more grandiose form, on his banner, as shown in the accompanying photographs. His followers adopt a simpler version for their own shields so that all the Warband carries the emblem of its Champion.

TZEENTCH

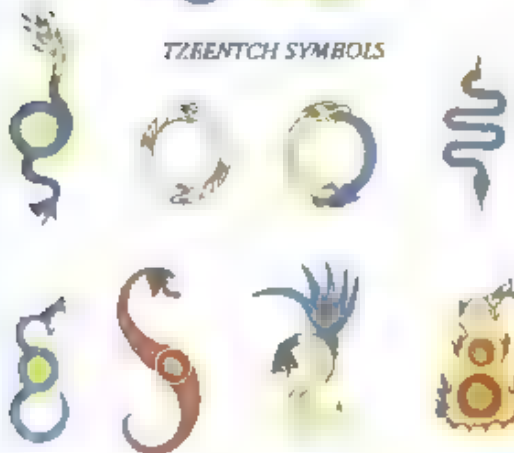

These shield and banner designs are typical of those used by the Champions of Tzeentch. The serpent is a very popular emblem because its twisting shape closely resembles the symbol of Tzeentch himself. Another popular symbol is the flame as seen in the fireskulls, sunbursts and fire grail. Of course these designs are just examples, and players are free to invent their own emblems as they wish.

Inhuman Champions and followers of the Chaos Powers offer challenging opportunities for spectacular conversion and painting. This is brilliantly demonstrated by the Mordant Centaur and Beasmen on this page - and especially by Ivan Bartlett's Dragon Ogre Champion

CHAOS WARBANDS

These pages show the Chaos Warbands of Werner Flamefist, Champion of Tzeentch, and Lothar Bubonicus, Champion of Nurgle

Although most Chaos Warbands are quite small, they are very varied, including small contingents of troops as well as interesting large creatures, a banner, and a powerful central Champion model. A Chaos Warband therefore makes an interesting collection of models, and one which can be added to as the Warband grows.

Chapter 10: The Periodic Table of Elements
Section 10.1: The Periodic Table of Elements

The periodic table of elements is a chart that shows the chemical and physical properties of the elements. It is organized into rows and columns, with elements that have similar properties grouped together.

The periodic table is divided into four main groups: metals, nonmetals, metalloids, and noble gases. Metals are found on the left side of the table, nonmetals on the right, metalloids in the middle, and noble gases on the far right.

The periodic table is also organized into periods and groups. There are seven periods and 18 groups. Elements in the same group have similar chemical properties, while elements in the same period have similar physical properties.

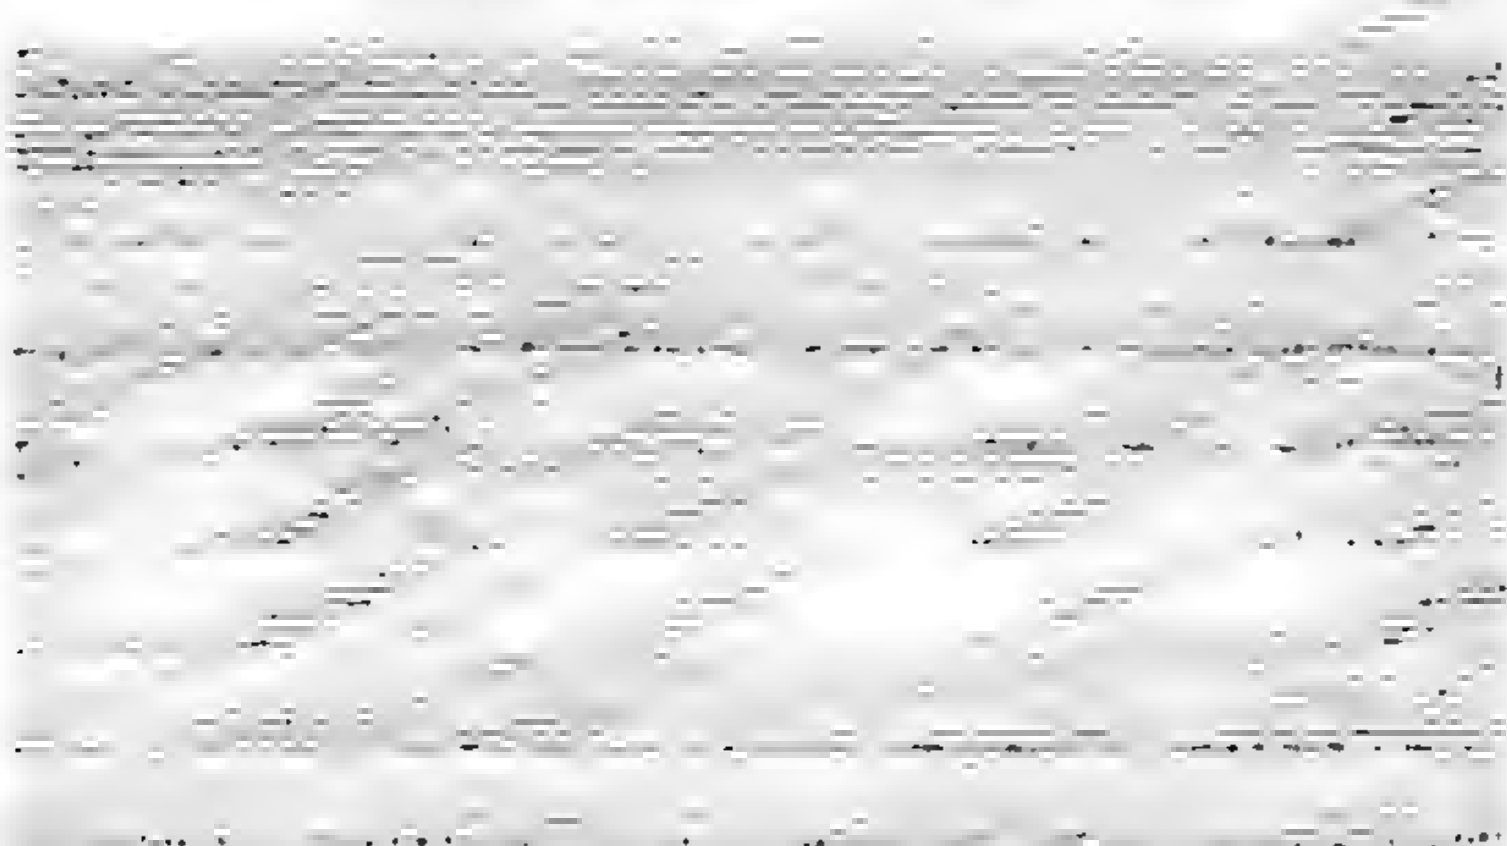

The periodic table is a fundamental tool for chemists, as it allows them to predict the properties of elements and understand the relationships between them. It is also used in many other fields, such as physics, biology, and geology.
